Big News in Small Cars

The only big sales in the automotive industry in 2008 are for small cars. Fuel prices have catapulted tiny compacts and subcompacts to the forefront of car sales while gas-guzzling trucks and SUVs languish on car lots. For example, sales growth for April 2008 compared to the same month in 2007 was 54% for the Honda Fit, 46% for the Toyota Yaris and 32% for the Ford Focus. Conversely, sales of the Chevrolet Silverado fell 30.5%.

Manufacturers, especially in the U.S., cannot produce enough small cars to meet the demand. While production at truck and SUV plants is scaling back, Ford is turning its Wayne, Michigan plant on overtime and Saturdays to produce more Focus units. GM had planned to add a third shift to its small car plant in Ohio in September 2008, but moved it up to August.

Daimler AG's line of "smart" cars (the trademarked lower-case name) has buyers putting down deposits and waiting sometimes months for delivery. The smart two passenger coupe is shorter from bumper to bumper by five feet than the Volkswagen Beetle and narrower by a foot, at eight feet, three inches long and five feet wide. The tiny car is a collaborative effort by Mercedes-Benz
